Centre for Homeless and Inclusion Health

The Centre for Homeless and Inclusion Health is a collaboration between the University of Edinburgh and local partners in Scotland to improve the health and wellbeing of people who experience homelessness.

About us

This collaboration is an exciting new initiative to bring together people with lived experience of homelessness, those working in the NHS, third sector, policy, local government and academia to work together to develop learning, teaching and research to improve the health and wellbeing of people who experience the worst health outcomes in society. The Centre for Homeless and Inclusion Health (The Centre) has been in development since 2016 and has built up strong partnerships working across a range of sectors, it has increased understanding of different perspectives and developed a clear vision of how we can work together to make a difference.

Our Centre for Homeless and Inclusion Health contributes to the vision of Edinburgh Local, to engage more meaningfully with the local community by bringing together the social, economic and political resources of the University of Edinburgh to work together with partners across the city to develop a unique and dynamic centre for learning, teaching
